The text

It was a new Monday 20th November. My name is Jaiden. I opened my eyes hardly, then I recognised that it was too late already to head to school. Hence, I jumped out of the bed, washed my face, brushed my teeth and hair, then got my usual breakfast. After, I exited quickly. When I made it to the school I recognized the hanging up balloons and ribbons, then I remembered that we celebrated children's day a week before. I apologised to the teacher for being late and I took my seat at the back. Suddenly, we heard loud voices coming out of the school yard. The pupils were shouting happily celebrating the teacher's day. Every single corner of the yard was beautifully decorated with bright flowers and coloured balloons. Some boys played with fireworks and they made the yard's sky burning magnificently. Others played music and even started dancing with the teachers who were really enjoying the party themselves. I asked my classmate Rachel about when all this was held, and he told me that the 6th grade B prepared this party as a surprise to honour their teachers and also it was their last year in this school. For, they would pass to prep-school. I could not hold my tears back for hearing this, then I remembered that I got a gift from my father yesterday at the airport, because he travelled abroad for work. So, I offered to one of my best teachers. It was a box in which there was a perfume and a hand watch.
